The Finnish metal phenomenon Stam1na have achieved almost everything a rock band can achieve in Finland. Each of their eight albums have sold Gold (one Platinum) and the band has played hundreds of mostly sold out shows all over the country. They have won six Emma awards (i.e. Finnish Grammy).

Stam1na's self-titled debut album catapulted Stam1na straight to the top of the Finnish metal scene right after its release. Stam1na toured around Finland and conquered more and more audience. In the yearly polls Finnish rock and metal audience were touchingly unanimous on Stam1na's greatness; Stam1na was voted as The Newcomer Of The Year in all relevant medias.

Their second album, "Uudet Kymmenen Käskyä", went straight to the 3rd place in the Official Finnish Chart, and has sold almost 20 000 copies. Album won the Emma Award in Metal Album of the Year category. "Uudet kymmenen käskyä" was released in Germany by ZYX Music in 2007. In Autumn 2007, Apocalyptica invited Stam1na to tour with them in the Baltic countries and Germany. Over 40 000 people enjoyed an unforgettable Stam1na show of virtuosity and great fun.

Their third album "Raja" spent two weeks on the #1 position of the Finnish album charts and again sold about 20 000 copies. "Raja" took the band to Germany again. This time they made thousands of metalheads go nuts at Wacken Open Air festival.

In February 2010 Stam1na released their fourth album "Viimeinen Atlantis". The ambitious theme album got nothing but praising reviews from the Finnish media and became the band's first Platinum album.

Stam1na's fifth album Nocebo, released in February 2012, was produced by Grammy nominated Joe Barresi who is also known for producing Tool's 10000 Days and many others. Nocebo hit the #1 position in Finland. Album was released by Bieler Bros Records in the USA in July 2012.

Their seventh album "Elokuutio" was produced by a Finnish metal pioneer Janne Joutsenniemi (Stone) and mixed by Jens Bogren. The album sold gold like all their previous releases. After "Elokuutio" the band toured extensively all over Europe and visited also Japan and the famous 70 000 Tons of Metal cruise in the Caribbean sea.

Stam1na's eight album Taival was released in October 2018. It sold gold and hit again #1 at the Finnish album chart. They also won the best metal album award at Emma Gaala. After touring in UK, Nordic Countries and Japan the band went on promoting Taival album in sold out shows in Finland for the rest of the year 2019.
